

A Proud Tradition

Since 1985, the national Public Service Excellence Awards have paid tribute to programs that embody the highest standards of government. Excellence Award winners represent public service at its best. The awards:

- Encourage innovation and excellence in government
- Reinforce pride in public service
- Call public attention to the broad range of services provided by public employees
- Provide government at all levels the opportunity to showcase their outstanding programs

Programs may be nominated either for a one-time achievement or sustained achievement over the past several years. Programs should either demonstrate outstanding improvement over previous performance or outstanding achievement in comparison to other existing programs with similar mandates. By recognizing groups rather than individuals, the Awards demonstrate the importance of teamwork in public service. The award winners represent public service at its best.

Federal, State, City, County, International and Intergovernmental Awards

Public Service Excellence Awards recognize working units of two or more employees within federal, state or local government agencies. The Intergovernmental Award recognizes the growing number of partnerships between units or levels of government. The International Award honors government programs which have an expressed mandate of international activity. All awards honor programs which demonstrate:

- Significant improvement in productivity or services
- Increased quality of life for Americans
- More cost-effective government programs or services

Community Service Award

Public employees often labor to improve their communities in ways outside of their jobs. Many retired public employees continue to serve their communities as well. The Community Service Award honors a program or project which has a significant impact on the community and is performed either as a volunteer effort by current public employees, by a non-profit group whose members are primarily public employees, or by a group of retired public employees.

All winners will be recognized during Public Service Recognition Week May 7-13, 2001.

National winners will be recognized at the Breakfast of Champions™ (May 7) in Washington, DC.

Sources of Best Practices Worldwide Database

Winners of our Excellence Awards will be included in a searchable online public database of government best practices accessible free via Internet. The Sources of Best Practices Worldwide is the result of a partnership between PER and the National Center for Public Productivity at Rutgers University, funded by a grant from the Government Information Technology Executive Council. The database includes federal, state and local government award-winning programs drawn from a variety of sources. This project is an important way in which we can help bring further visibility to good government and allow others to build their programs on previous successes.

The awards program was initiated by Public Employees Roundtable, a non-profit, non-partisan coalition of over 30 management and professional associations representing some one million public employees and retirees. The mission of the Roundtable is to educate Americans about the quality of people in government and the value of the services they provide, to improve excellence and esprit de corps among public employees, and to encourage interest in public service careers.

Awards Will Be Made in the Following Categories:

All nominations must be for programs of two or more employees administered by U.S. federal, city, county or state government agencies, except the Community Service Award. Individuals are not eligible. Some programs may readily fit into more than one award category; however, a program may be nominated for only one category. Nominations will be judged in the category for which they are nominated unless the committee deems it ineligible under the criteria stated below, in which case the nomination will be re-assigned to the most appropriate category. One national award will be made in each of the following categories:

Federal: A program administered by a U.S. federal government agency including military units.

State: A program administered by an agency of one of the 50 U.S. states or U.S. territories or by a Native American tribal government.

City: A program administered by a city or town government within the U.S.

County: A program administered by a county government within the U.S.

Intergovernmental: A program which is a collaborative effort between two or more government agencies at the same level or among different levels of government (i.e. two city governments or one city and one state government agency).

International: A program within a U.S. federal, state or local government, or an inter-governmental organization which has an expressed mandate (statutory, regulatory or programmatic) of international activity.

Community Service: A program effort undertaken by all or part of a group of public employees, members of a professional or non-profit organization the majority of whose members are public employees, or by a retiree group which represents former public employees, and which benefits the community.

In addition, the Award Committee may designate an honorable mention from each category if it so chooses.

Ten Tips from the Committee

Excellent nominations reflect excellence in the service being nominated. Bear in mind that your nomination is the total representation of your program to the evaluation committee — the judges will evaluate your program solely on the nomination you submit. Please remember that the judges read many nominations. Therefore, write well, be succinct, and clearly describe your program so the judges will have an easier time understanding your program and its significance. The following are suggestions from the award committee to prepare an excellent nomination.

1. Be brief. Avoid excessive wordiness and unnecessary detail.
2. Read each criterion completely and answer each criterion properly. Avoid redundancy.
3. When using numbers and statistics to describe your program, be clear and do not mislead (e.g., if your staff doubled, clarify if it grew from 1 to 2 or from 100 to 200).
4. Proofread your work. Ask others to review your nomination for clarity.
5. Avoid excessive use of acronyms and jargon. Remember, the judges may not be familiar with your organization and its jargon.
6. Be specific and concrete in your descriptions. Avoid generalizations and/or complex descriptions.
7. Concentrate on the outcomes of the program.
8. Make your nomination easy to read (e.g., avoid long paragraphs, use reasonable font sizes).
9. Make information readily available to the reader. Do not make the judges hunt for information in your nomination.
10. Submit your nomination by the January 12, 2001 deadline.

PUBLIC SERVICE EXCELLENCE AWARD QUESTIONS

Please address each of the following areas in narrative form. Nominations should be both thorough and succinct. The maximum number of pages is 10 (ten), excluding the cover page. Appendices and supporting materials are not accepted. Responses should be organized in the same order as the criteria below. The criteria are designed to give the evaluation committee a sense of your program, its function, services, innovation, and effectiveness. (Examples of submissions from previous award winners are available on the PER Roundtable web site.)

Remember, your application should answer the question "So what?" Why should citizens care about the program? Why is the program valuable? Would other organizations be interested in replicating your program?

I. Executive Summary

Provide a one-page summary of your program and explain what makes the program exceptional.

II. Program Description

1. Purpose and Scope: Describe the purpose of your program. Describe the significance of the program and how it addresses a problem of public concern. What need does your program address? What is the target audience? What are the goals of the program and what outcomes does the program achieve? Who receives services and how do you serve your customers? (Where possible, use numbers to describe the extent and scope of the customers served.)
2. Function: Describe how the program functions. How is the program implemented? How does the program address the identified need? How does the program provide services and/or interact and serve its customers? How does this program demonstrate that public employees and programs effectively serve the public?

Intergovernmental and Community Service submissions only:

How do you coordinate and interact with other agencies and/or organizations?

3. Quality and Innovation: Describe the quality of services and the service delivery. Describe the innovative aspects of the program. How does the program demonstrate creativity, encourage innovation, and promote excellence in public service?

4. Commitment: Describe the level of employee involvement and commitment. Describe the teamwork involved in this program. How does this program show the sacrifice, commitment, and value of the work performed by public employees?

5. Effectiveness: Describe the measures of organizational effectiveness in both qualitative and quantitative terms. Provide evidence of what the program has achieved.

Qualitative: Describe how the program has benefitted your customers. What examples illustrate the impact of your program? What changes have taken place as a result of the program (e.g., before/after indicators)?

Quantitative: Describe the effectiveness of the program (e.g., productivity improvements, cost savings, customer satisfaction). What data and measures are used to monitor performance, report results, and evaluate the program? How has the program performed?

Additional Requirement for Nominations in the Community Service Category:

The nomination must be accompanied by letters of recommendation from groups or individuals who have benefitted directly from the nominated program or group. The minimum number of recommendation letters is two; the maximum is five.
